Fire kills 4,000 people every year in Europe. 90% of our time is spent inside buildings, where 90% of fires take place. Although construction materials and buildings have changed dramatically in recent years, many of the regulations that monitor their fire safety are inefficient.

The new European Construction Products Regulations (CPR) is a unique turning point to enhance the level of safety by ensuring reliable information on construction products in relation to their fire performances.

BE ACTIVE AND TURN CPR INTO ACTION.
